

WORKSHOP

INDIGENOUS-LED SAVANNAH FIRE MANAGEMENT

 9:30 AM to 1:00 PM

 Thursday, 19 November

 Darwin Convention Centre

 $115 Member
$125 Non-Member

REGISTER NOW

Audience: The workshop is open to Indigenous people and representatives of Indigenous organisations only.

Indigenous carbon projects deliver real benefits for climate, community, and Country. Projects support Traditional Owners to return to Country and create meaningful jobs in remote areas.

In April 2026, two new Savanna Fire Management (SFM) carbon methods were released for Sequestering and/or Emissions Avoidance from reducing the impact hot fires. For the first time these methods account for the carbon stored in living plants and trees.

Join this workshop to hear from experts, who will be delivering information via Plain English education modules developed through the Carbon Farming Outreach Program, about the opportunities and challenges for groups to consider before transferring to, or starting a new project within, these new SFM methods.

The workshop is hosted by the Indigenous Carbon Industry Network (ICIN), the peak body representing 25 Indigenous organisations leading carbon projects across Australia.